"Quartet are excellent at championing local philanthropy and funding pilot projects to test ideas. This is crucial for us enabling small-scale testing of projects and allowing us to prove the benefits of a project to secure future larger amounts of funding."

Thank you from our Chair and Chief Executive

It has been a great year for connecting people who care with causes that matter. Thanks to the increased commitment of the philanthropists that work with and through us, this has been a record-breaking year. We have been able to achieve our goal of a significant increase in philanthropy channelled through us with new funds set up, additions to existing funds and the growth in the total endowment:

- we gave over £3.5 million in grants from funds we hold to 877 projects, reaching over 230,000 beneficiaries
- donations and income totalled over £8 million
- our endowment has grown to be £33.3 million at 31 March year end.

There is, however, so much more to do. For many people in the West of England, life is hard and the continuing pressure on many sources of funding and support means that philanthropy is invaluable in giving everyone here a fair chance of a good life.

Thanks to a generous £1 million legacy gift from a local donor, we have established The Lasting Legacy Match – a new 1:2 match funding endowment challenge which will generate £3 million in new funding to support local charitable activity.

In this report you will read more about our activities and successes this year in inspiring philanthropy, grant-making and community leadership. We hope this will inspire you to work with us, so do contact us to get involved.

Connecting people who care with causes that matter

The latest figures show that across the country public donations are down, and that the gap between overall giving to small charities and big charities is growing as larger charities dominate legacy donations. Yet it is these small charities that local people in need turn to for help with a wide range of problems from feeding children during the school holidays to getting help for elderly relatives and everything in between. That's why we're here to inspire philanthropy to support the small, local community organisations that offer vital, life-changing services to some of our most disadvantaged communities across Bristol, Bath & North East Somerset (B&NES), North Somerset and South Gloucestershire.

Changing lives - Grant-making

We connect our 268 fund holders to vital good causes that they care about, helping award £3.5 million of grant funding that changes local lives.

Giving to people in need - Philanthropy Services

Finding inspirational small local causes to support is difficult but this is what we do for our fund holders every day. Fund holders are inspired by our events and project visits throughout the year as well as the heartfelt thanks from organisations that value their support.

Standing up for what you believe in – Community Leadership

Shining the spotlight on the reasons that people struggle with disadvantage is an important part of our work. Through our research and community leadership we work to make life fairer for everyone.

Changing local needs

Needs are growing across the area and small, local causes are struggling with increased demands and budget cuts. Our 2019 Vital Signs report highlights significant needs across the West of England and how this is impacting health and wellbeing. The report shows that local people want more investment for services for children and young people, which have been under huge strain, impacting on the next generation unfairly and limiting their life chances.

Vital Signs shows that local people are finding life difficult:

 19,197 children in the West of England received free school meals in 2018. Holiday hunger is a growing issue: 73% of parents on low incomes say they can't always afford to feed their children during the school holidays.

- Growing up in poverty disadvantages children in Bath and North East Somerset less than half (48.2%) of children age 5 with free school meal status achieve a good level of development.
- Low or no qualifications in South Bristol only 15.7% of young people went into higher education, compared with 35.5% nationally. In Filwood, Bristol 6.6% of young people attend university compared with 100% in Clifton.
- Incidence of cancer is very high locally, with large swathes of the West of England in the worst 40% nationally. Areas of Hartcliffe, Avonmouth, Southmead, Hillfields, Patchway, Twerton/Whiteway and Weston-super-Mare are all among the worst 5% nationally for cancer incidences.

"Quartet has inspired my philanthropy and kept me in touch with moves to develop the community anchor organisations. Also it continues to keep me in touch with the charity scene in Bristol."

Child's play – it's the SPICE of life

"Playing isn't just fun, it's also the best way for children to learn. By playing, children practise all the skills they need as they grow up. Research shows that play really is the SPICE of life and boosts Social, Physical, Intellectual, Creative and Emotional Development," says Kirsty Wilson, from Children's Scrapstore.

Today's children only play outside half as much as their parents did and in 2015 only 23% of boys and 20% of girls aged 5-15 got enough physical activity.

Low family incomes, lack of opportunity, safety fears and too much screen time all contribute to children missing out on the serious learning that happens through play. For children play really is the work of childhood. It costs money to offer them safe play spaces, however funding cuts in 2018 left many local play organisations in crisis, threatening their ability to help our most disadvantaged children and young people. Can you imagine communities without places to play? We certainly can't, so the good news is we've worked with the Pople Charitable Trust to support the Children's Scrapstore and LPW as part of 'Playful Bristol'.

David Pople from the Pople Charitable Trust which funded this vital work explained: "It's inspiring to see the difference play makes to the lives of disadvantaged children in Bristol, and to see the commitment of these play organisations. We're delighted to support their work from the Pople Charitable Trust.

"It's been fascinating to see what these play organisations do. It's given us further insight into the pressures they are under and highlighted how our funding can make a difference to their longerterm sustainability.

"Quartet Community Foundation's advice and support has been invaluable as they support us to make sure our funds have maximum impact."

Kirsty Wilson said: "This funding was amazing because it helped the Children's Scrapstore and LPW develop our long-term approach so that we can continue offering play opportunities to some of Bristol's most disadvantaged 5-11 year olds."

Rob Lear from the Bank of Ireland UK visiting the new garden at Woodlands Academy in Stockwood, Bristol

Business colleagues' choice helps children grow

"I love the garden," says a pupil of Woodlands Academy in Stockwood, Bristol. "There are loads of tadpoles in the pond, and I love playing in the den and with the musical instruments."

Woodlands Academy is set in the Stockwood housing estate in Bristol and the number of the school's pupils receiving free school meals is almost double the national average. The children can spend quality time playing in the new garden thanks to a $\pounds4,537$ grant through the Bank of Ireland UK Community Giving Fund.

The contribution from the Bank's fund means the garden now features a bespoke accessible workstation for children and people from the community to learn about plant propagation plus a sensory garden.

With a den, wildlife pond, giant marble run and much more the curious children have plenty of opportunities to learn about nature and enjoy playing in the new environment.

Rob Lear from Bank of Ireland UK said: "It has been inspiring to see and hear about the work the PTA do and how the garden project is benefiting children in the school. We're delighted to have been able to support their work from our fund.

"Bank colleagues really enjoy getting involved and take an active role in choosing which projects to fund. We're motivated to see the difference grants from this fund can make to local communities. Quartet Community Foundation help us identify groups looking for support and offer us great support and guidance."

From student to CEO: meet Marc Hurr who turned an R W Barnes bursary into a thriving business

My Dad did not go to university and my Mum only got the opportunity to complete her degree in her 40s. I am very grateful to my parents who, through their hard work, were able to send myself and my two brothers to Uni.

Even with the loan, things were pretty thin on the ground and I had to live off giant value mega packs of pasta and questionably cheap £5 whole chickens for those four years of university.

The bursary - I remember the endless apprehension as I waited for my letter back to find out if I was approved, year after year. And the joy in finding out that yes, I was going to have some extra money to spend on something that could make my student life a little better.

This might sound silly, but receiving money from someone who I didn't know, and who didn't know me, made a great impression on me when I was younger. I felt looked out for.

I made two purchases with my R W Barnes Bursary money which made a significant difference to my university life and the years that followed: a city bicycle and my first laptop. Eight months after my degree I began building my company from that laptop. Since I was the first engineer, most of the initial company infrastructure was built on there. Now, more than three years after we started, we have over 150 employees.

The company is a FinTech platform, part of a new wave of financial firms sometimes referred to as NeoBanks.

I like to think that once I have solved problems close to home I would help others who might be in a similar situation to the one I was in. Support for young people such as the R W Barnes Bursary and the Erasmus scheme dramatically improved my learning opportunities, and initiatives like these must continue with renewed support from those who most benefitted.

Take a look at Marc's company at www.linkedin.com/company/ibanwallet/

Community leadership is a growing focus and we work with other organisations to support local needs and share the knowledge gathered from the grants we award and our Vital Signs research. For example, this year we have significantly increased collaboration with other funders to support older people, younger people and disadvantaged communities.

With the withdrawal of government support many local communities are increasingly needing additional support. Our recent research highlighted the importance of community hubs which needed support so we initiated the Funding the Future programme. We brought together local philanthropists and funders to secure £750,000 of new funding for vital community hubs and we're currently supporting eight disadvantaged communities to develop their own solutions.

In addition to small grants to small groups we now make larger grants so that groups can diversify their income and become more sustainable. Five years ago, only 17% of our discretionary grant-making was over £2,500; now 80% of our grants are larger than this.

Somer Valley Foodbank - £3,500 towards cost of foodbank's van and warehousing

"The volunteers at the foodbank were so lovely, they listened to me and made me feel human again. It was the first place I didn't feel judged."

A word from the Annual Review sponsors

"The most noteworthy thing about gardeners is that they are always optimistic, always enterprising, and never satisfied. They always look forward to doing something better than they have ever done before." – Vita Sackville-West (1892 - 1962)

Bluebell £30,000 to support families affected by ante and post-natal depression "Without Bluebell, it scares me writing this, I don't think I'd be here today.

It's my second hit of PND and I didn't think I was worthy of recovery."

Gifts in Wills

Ron Barnes (1944 – 2018) helped change the future for young people needing a helping hand. A gift in your Will to Quartet Community Foundation will ensure you keep on caring about the local people and causes that matter to you, forever.

Somerset business man, a scientist with diverse business interests, Ron Barnes was passionate about giving young people opportunities. In his lifetime he gave 277 grants worth £266,540 to help students with their university studies. Through a gift in his Will we will carry on this work forever.
